

EGEE will integrate current national, regional and thematic Grid efforts to create a seamless European Grid infrastructure for the support of the European Research Area.

The Enabling Grids for E-science in Europe, or EGEE project as it is more commonly known, brings together experts from over 27 countries with the common aim of building on recent advances in grid technology and developing a service grid infrastructure in Europe which is available 24 hours-a-day.

For more information visit our local webpage or the official website at CERN <http://www.eu-eg ee.org>

Funding Agencies:

